“ Rest In Peace, James. I will never forget your readiness to join the W.E.R.C. team and photograph our most memorable moments. Most often it was the releasing of wild animals back to their habitat after recovery. I also remember the time you asked to photograph the capture of a recovered bobcat within her enclosure for a pre-release exam. You safety-gear-ed-up and followed the team into the enclosure with the yowling adult bobcat crouching on the shelf in the corner. You didn't blink as the capture was done quickly and tooth and claw swung within inches of your lens and landed in the transport kennel. Thank you, James, for your love of native wildlife and for all your beautiful photographs. We have missed your presence lately and we shall miss it forever. R.I.P.
