Hi Luke, I lived next door to Emily - a few houses down from you. I remember you playing in your front yard all the time and playing catch with her dad. This year, the day of death anniversary will be the same as the day she passed. Emily was so sweet and friendly. She was so good with kids and easy to get along with. I tell my daughter (who was almost 2 years old when she died) all about Emily and how we'd visit the kitties living in her garage and her indoor kitty, Kyle. I hope you're doing well, Luke. Btw, you'll be happy to know that since you moved, the family who bought it from the people that your parents sold it to, also have a little boy that was around your age then. He also plays alone in the front yard and is very friendly.

“ When I hear the name Emily... I think of only one person and it has one meaning. I remember when Em first sent me a photo of her with her bright blue hair and then pulled up to my house with her matching bright blue car... I LOVED it. It represented her soul perfectly. Emily's spirit is so vibrant and brave. She inspires myself and many others to be the happiest version of ourselves. She's fearless, fierce, kind, loving, and I could go all, but most of all she's unapologetically EMILY! Emily will always be my cousin, sister, and very bestfriend. And she will always push me to be the best version of myself. She taught me a lot by just existing... Emily never feared judgement. Emily was such an Emily and those that knew her know exactly what that means. Emily wasn't afraid to rip off a bandage, she wasn't afraid to chase the most out of life, she wasn't afraid to speak her mind, she wasn't afraid to paint the world with her favorite colors, she wasn't afraid to say HEY I LOOK GOOD TODAY HUH! she was BRAVE and HAPPY and AMBITIOUS and CONFIDENT and lit up the whole world with her personality and BIG SMILE 🦋💙 I love you forever and ever sister, I'll never go a day without thinking of you. Thank you for helping me grow, for being my diary, for making me laugh until I'm blue and for being 100% Emily.... Till we meet again babe💙💙
