“ My sister Dora and "Ginnie" as she always called her were not only cousins but life long friends. When we were growing up Dora enjoyed staying at Ginnie's house in San Jose. Ginnie drove a 1965 green Mustang and she and Dora would cruise down First Street with "Come on baby light my fire" blaring in the background. They'd be laughing and flirting and just having an amazing time. When Dora got married in 1970, it was Ginnie she asked to be her maid of honor. For the rest of their lives, these two maintained a close friendship as they raised children. They supported each other as they faced hardships and joyful times. I understand that today Dorinda and Tammy are friends. When I shared the news to Dora's kids of Ginnie passing, they remembered how Ginnie and Dora had been close throughout all these years. I imagine that now they are together spiritually and enjoying each other's company again. To her family, God bless as you grieve your special mom, grandmother, sister, and daughter. Sincerely, Norma Garcia
